

The Common Core State Standards:

--Growth mindset is especially significant with the implementation of the Common Core State Standards, since their release in June of 2010. They were developed to help bring education out of the old paradigm of an industrialized society into the innovative globalized society of the 21st Century.

¹⁷ These standards support the growth mindset approach. They "require students to take intellectual risks and to locate themselves in uncertainty," then to move beyond that with effort and learning strategies. ¹⁸ They give teachers a fresh opportunity to empower their students to discover their own answers and solutions to problems. ¹⁹ So, now is the perfect time to develop your own growth mindset and that of your students!
